Hi David,

I greatly enjoyed the articles on the Sphinx, and hope you will post your findings. In the latest issue of UFO Newsclipping Service, there were 2 articles on the professors and the Sphinx. Fascinating!

Best,

Linda

Hi David -- I hope you'll be able to keep us aprised on this topic. So many archaeological OOPARTS (Out-of-place Artifacts) are so tempting to speculate about. Cyclopean stones off Andros Island, ancient, weathered tunnels thru Utah, etc. These things have given Charles Berlitz endless fodder -- and they're genuinely confusing and challenging. So I think you and the Brazilians are probably on to something, but it's almost impossible to imagine what.

Anyhow, I hope you can keep us posted.

Hmmm, indeed. Actually, some of the most interesting stuff is underwater on the U.S. Costal Shelf, around Bermuda and the Caribbean islands, and in the Gulf of Mexico. I seem to recall the discovery of a well-preserved stone staircase leading down to a beach on the Yucatan.

But the beach is now 150' underwater, the stairs begin almost 100' underwater, and they clearly correspond to sea levels of B.C. 20,000.

There's a similar anomaly just below Mancu Picu in the Andes: a stairway leads down to the beach. The beach is at about 11,000 feet elevation, and seems to have been there before the Mountains rose to their present height! In fact the whole city of Mancu Picu has been "undatable" according to some sources, because it was virtually earthquake-proof (until the Conquistadores removed the flexible silver braces from the buildings).

I second that! Does Dr. Petit accept the UMMO hypothesis?!?

The UMMO thing has all the elements of a very elaborate long-term hoax, but *some* stories associated with it defy explanation: there was an MIB-like incident in Spain, I believe, in the late 50s -- that referred to a long-forgotten Jack-the-Ripper-like crime in the same house many years before the MIB visit. It's weird, weird stuff.

But I'd be surprised if Petit buys UMMO hook, line, sinker, and anonymous mail...

David -- your Big Picture post is very thoughtful indeed.

I agree with you -- or the way your thinking is evolving, anyway. Mine is following similar paths. I haven't felt the need to use a channel yet, though, and honestly doubt the relevance of channeled information. I think we're making great strides in theory on our own, don't you?

Be that as it may, the M-field and the holographic paradigm could explain plenty. Behaviours, for instance. If our brains work holographically, and can also serve as receptors, perhaps much of a species' behaviour and tendencies exist independently, outside of the species. In the M-field. The field could be constantly evolving, incorporating behaviours in a species as those behaviours become predominant. The Hundredth Monkey observations seem to point directly to this, and they infer some pretty Reichian stuff like a Collective Unconscious and "shared memory".

I'd like to digest your post some more and comment further as time allows. But one thought I've been playing with is that UFOs -- or UFO beings, at least -- could have access to the M-field. Perhaps they *come* from it, or at least need it, or rely upon it in some way.

Therefore, their agenda could be *shaping and re-shaping* behaviours, perceptions, or beliefs. Jacques Vallee has commented on this quite a bit, but has not tied it in to a motive for the UFOnauts weird behaviour and frequent appearances. The M-field -- the total sum of human beliefs and actions -- could offer such a motive.

Thanks for the interesting observations!

I'd like to see some facts about this device in the future. So far it's a large publicity release. Anyone have some details on whether this device has ever lifted itself or anything, or is it a theoretical machine which lends itself to development when materials catch up with the technology?

Just like the airplane was dependent on a light enough internal combustion engine that could power it. Gliders already existed, wings were known, the engine was the key to completion.

Just for the record Schoch is a Geologist. West is (as he says it) Author, Travel Guide and self-proclaimed "rogue Egyptologist".

Most amusing is that he looks like me! If you see his picture in the Oct 10th USA today article, it's uncanny.

I'm still getting the paper from Orkney. Reports of Northern Lights, they called them "Merry Dancers". I have seen some other allusions to fairies and some unusual unknown terms, like the Merry Dancers. Fun to track the meaning down. If I do move there in 1993, I will continue with Paranet.

Excavation on the Viking boat burial, on Sanday, will have begun by this reading. It's described as the find of the century. Unlike some of the unusual finds in the US, Scotland sent a team of six to immediately dig and preserve the materials found. The actual location is being kept secret until after the research is done, just in case.

I wonder if anyone is doing anything with the claims for the Ogden Object? Keeping it a secret and doing nothing, is fruitless. And how did they get a part of it into an electron microscope if it can't be cut? (hmmmmmm) The worst solution to this would be no more information, and have it remain a vague enigma eternally. Unsubstantiated claims really cork me off.

Thanks for the two articles, I read them on the plane on the way to Vegas last week. Mike L went to the same high school with me. In fact we played in a band together for two or three years. He's extremely intelligent, was politically active (and I'm still not), creative person.

I graduated a year before him and that year he hooked up with some other guys who practiced some magic. (or is that Majic?) They put a spell on a cop that was bugging them, if that's the right term, and he had an auto accident a couple of days later. Maybe co-incidence? Meanwhile I was in college in Iowa, far from anything bigger than a snowdrift.

There's more, but best kept in netmail if you are interested. Mike was a good guy and close friend for three years. That was in 1966 so who knows what the years can do to change a person. His article alludes to Cooperish information. I need to re-read it. The comment about the bombs being developed for use in soil like we have in the South-West was distorted to say it wasn't meant for Russia. First thing that came to my pea sized brain was, What about the Gulf War? I think he is aiming towards mystery and weirdness, and avoiding some straight forward answers.

Now if you really want to feel sorry for me, just watch the weather reports for this area, I'm an outdoor person, 12 inches of snow is just no fun after 70 degrees in California last week. 8*)

Why, Doug & Dave are in the UK now! Fly them back there and I'm sure they'll crank out a few dozen for you some weekend! :-)

John, the show aired October 18th, 1991 on the FOX Network. It was a co-production with Winkler and Ann Daniels Productions. It also as an aside, had the highest share and rating in that time slot that Fox has ever received.

We speak about it in the next issue of UFO Magazine.

On 10-31-91 I had a message from you via ParaNet UFO Echo in which you requested a copy of the audiotape I'd made of the KOA radio interview of Richard Price (the abductee who claims to have a now-removed implant which is being studied by MIT scientists.) I believe I answered that I would send that tape if you'd send the address. Now I see that I've also had another message of nearly identical content from Keith Basterfield, also of Australia, and also Origin Lined: UFO Research Australia, but where yours says UFORA Associate VIC, his says Research Officer. His netmail address is 9:1040/12 while yours is listed as 9:1040/15.

I have received a mailing address from K.B. and have just mailed a copy of that tape off to him. I'm sorry to say that the similarities --same first names and same country of origin -- apparently confused me and I thought I'd answered your request as well, thinking you were the same person. Now I realize I was wrong and I apologize. I will be happy to send the tape as you requested if you'll send me the address. (The one for K.B. was in Modbury north.)

Please accept my sincere apologies for this inattentive error. I didn't mean to neglect your request and am truly sorry for this delay.

I found this gem in my local paper 'The Basingstoke Gazette'. It included a photo of Douglas Bower with his hoaxing contraption. I have copied it word for word, it reads :

'A show of Corn for a Landscape Artist who Fooled the World'

'IT'S A FULL CIRCLE FOR THE HOAXER'S ART!'

'The man who confessed to fooling millions of people with hundreds of corn circles is making his mark in Hartley Witney.

But its not another hoax. This time Douglas Bower is exhibiting his paintings of the circles and the tools he said he used to make them.

Douglas, 67, and his friend David Chorley announced this year that they had created over the past 13 years the circles which have mystified top scientists and the military.

Until now he hadn't dared show the circle pictures in case the link was made with him.

Douglas started the hoax in an attempt to fool the UFO societies. It was 'just a laugh', he said.

A contraption made with a stick and rein were used to create the circles, he said.

Sceptics have queried how the straight lines were made in darkness.

Douglas said: ' You look through the loop on the hat, train your eye on a fixed point, walk towards it and you get the straightest line you could ever wish for.'

He believes that all the circles that have been found worldwide are man-made.

Douglas is well known for his watercolours of Hampshire landscapes.

The exhibition at Century Galleries, High Street, Hartley Witney, runs until next Thursday.'

*UFO Magazine* Volume 7 No. 1, has now hit the print shop.

I know I have said it before, but allow me once more to state that this issue is very big. *UFO has 3 very important scoops in this issue.

First, UFO is running the Phobos shot with my story on how it came to be. I know many of you heard about it, now here is your chance to see it.

Second, the final installment of the Lee Graham story airs this issue. What makes it important you ask? Well, *UFO received from Graham a document that has never seen the "public" light of day. I know you have all heard of the Aquarius document, and 2 or 3 pages of it have been public for a while. Well, *UFO received the "ENTIRE" 9 pages of the Aquarius document that Bill Moore was given reportedly by a Govt. agent connected with Falcon, and he has had it since the early 80's. Graham has filed FOIA's on it with NO response from the government in months. We are turning up the heat.

Third. *UFO received a startling admission from a very controversial UFO figure while investigating the Graham story. *UFO is running with it. This feeds right back into the intelligence establishment.

And of course, so much more.....
